It is necessary to state, however, that the terms peripheral and central sinuses have been rejected altogether, because no one has shown that they are comparable to the corresponding structures of lymph nodes. The only true sinuses of hemolymph nodes are the radicles of the venous system; the venous lacunae of Weidenreich; which structurally are tremendously dilated capillaries, and which form an integral part of the vascular system of the hemolymph node. The so-called peripheral and central sinuses of the hemolymph nodes can much more properly be designated as subcapsular or marginal and central - in the sense of internal only - blood spaces or areas, than as sinuses, since they are neither in direct communication with either the lymphatic or vascular circulations, as a rule. The sheep was also chosen as the first subject of experiment and inquiry, because almost all investigators of hemolymph nodes had studied them in this animal to a greater or less extent; because the nodes are much more numerous than in any of the other domestic animals studied; and since a convenient, inexpensive, and also an abundant supply of material was afforded by the abattoirs, where an unlimited number of embryos and foetuses of all ages could easily be obtained.
